

Walking through Sadness: Survey Analysis of College Student Breakup Scenario

Pei-Han Kuo, 郭佩涵, B.A.

Wenzao Ursuline University of Languages, 2017

Abstract

According to the poll research, among the issues surrounding the young people, having and losing the intimate relationship is by far the most important one they care about. Accordingly, when the relationship came to the end, dealing it right became the very important lesson for them.

This research adopted survey approach to understand how college men and women perceive, maintain and deal with the breakup scenario. The findings provided a whole picture of how young people date, how they get together, how they form their friend hood, how they breakup and how they went through the sadness and recover from it.

Overall, this research suggested that the factors such as parents, friends, communities and their behavioral pattern during relationship do not have significant impact on how they deal with the breakup. And, crisis management, such as how and where to find help become crucial in dealing with the breakup scenario.

Key words: College student, intimate relationship, breakup, attitude, advice.