

Retired Public Servant's Perception on Annuity Reform

Ya-Hsuan Hsieh

Wenzao Ursuline University of Languages, 2017

Abstract

The current government implemented an annuity reform, but it received a lot of opposition. Government should understand the idea of retired government employees and adjust policy, but they didn't do it. Retired government employees are dissatisfied with the pension reform policy of government because they considered that rights were exploited. I would also like to know the importance of pensions for retired government employees. I interviewed with retired government employees who concerned about annuities and whether they agree with the government's actions. Then, I analyzed their opinion of each of research questions. I found that retired public servants didn't agree very much with the reform of the government. Due to the government's reform couldn't really solve the annuity bankruptcy. Therefore, the government's pension reform must pay more attention to the needs of retired government employees and make adjustments. Keywords: government employees, pensions, pensions, pension fund.